SKILLS

I have a very proactive attitude towards problems and have initiative to making decisions. I have a very strong work ethic and I am hard on myself to achieve my goals and objectives. I write and speak English fluently. I also have a useful set of social skills, with a background in sales and public relations, which allow me to get the most out of teamwork.

I spent the first semester of 2019 living and working in New York City, not only an incredible working experience, but I also found myself in a great place to meet and connect with a huge amount of different people from all around the world. How my perspective has grown in these past months is beyond measure and I find myself with a great network around the globe.

Returning to Buenos Aires on August 2, after this experience, with great energy and focus on my career.
